Test 05

Read the text on rainforests and complete the chart.

Tropical rainforests are located around the equator. The temperature around the equator is high. Hence the rate of water evaporation is high. As a result there is frequent rain in rainforests. They are found in south and Central America, Africa, Asia and in the islands around Australia. The rainforests are rich source of medicinal plants food and useful forest products. These forests help to maintain a regular rainfall. They also stand as a buffer against floods, droughts and erosion.

Test 07

Read the following extract and answer the questions.

Winter was coming and the days began to get cold and windy. When it was very windy grandfather kept Heidi at home. She was sorry not to go with Peter, but there were nice things to be done at home, too. She liked to look at grandfather while he was working. Sometimes he made things out of wood, and often there were things in the house to be mended. Heidi also loved to see him making the cheese from the goats' milk. But most of all, she loved to stand under the old oak trees and hear the wind singing in them.

One night, it snowed .In the morning everything was white and beautiful, but they could not even open the door. For nearly a week they had to stay inside the house.
